Rarely have the forms of artistic expression in a medium changed so quickly and completely as with American ceramists of the mid-20th century. In a single generation, they transformed their field, pushing boundaries to create highly individual approaches to working with clay. Now, in lively and thought-provoking lectures delivered for Northern Clay Center's Regis Masters Series, thirteen senior American ceramic artists reveal what has motivated, inspired and challenged them through long, productive careers.

Featuired artists include Rudy Autio, William Daley, Stephen De Staebler, Ruth Duckworth, Jack Earl, Ken Ferguson, Karen Karnes, Warren Mackenzie, James Melchert, Robert Turner, Peter Voulkos, Betty Woodman and Eva Zeisel.
